PENCE LEAVES GAME AFTER PLAYERS KNEEL

I Vice President Mike Pence walked out of an NFL game in his home state of Indiana after some players knelt during the national anthem, a form of demonstration that began last year as a symbolic protest about police violence against racial minorities. Pence was attending a game between the Indianapolis Colts and the San Francisco 49ers. Some players from the 49ers knelt during the Star Spangled Banner, while some Colts wore black T-shirts with the words "We Will" on the front and "Stand for equality, justice, unity, respect, dialogue, opportunity" on the back. The players stood with their arms locked during the anthem, according to media reports. "I left today's Colts game because President Trump and I will not dignify any event that disrespects our soldiers, our flag, or our national anthem," Pence said in a statement.

IRAN WARNS US AGAINST IMPOSING SANCTIONS

2 Iran warned the United States against designating its Revolutionary Guards Corp as a terrorist group and said U.S. regional military bases would be at risk if further sanctions were passed. The warning came after the White House said on Friday that President Trump would announce new U.S. responses to Iran's missile tests, support for "terrorism" and cyberoperations as part of his new Iran strategy.

"As we've announced in the past, if America's new law for sanctions is passed, this country will have to move their regional bases outside the 2,000 km range of Iran's missiles," Guards' commander Mohammad Ali Jafari said, according to state media. Jafari also said that additional sanctions would end the chances for future dialogue with the United States, according to state media, and issued a stark warning to American troops.

5 THINGS YOU NEED TO KNOW

SECURING FENWAY

3 A security officer stands on a roof on the third base side of Fenway Park during Game 3 of the ALDS between the Red Sox and Houston Astros on Sunday. Security has been tightened in the wake of last week's Las Vegas shootings.

TRUMP DERIDES CORKER FOR IRAN DEAL

4 President Donald Trump blamed Sen. Bob Corker for the Iran nuclear deal in a series of derisive Twitter posts that drew a sharp comeback from the lawmaker, an influential fellow Republican and onetime ally. The senator, who announced his retirement last month, was a national security adviser to Trump during the 2016 presidential campaign and on Trump's short list last year for both vice president and secretary of state. More recently, he has criticized Trump, taking issue with the president's response to a white supremacist demonstration in Charlottesville, Virginia, in August. Critics assailed Trump for saying rival protesters were also to blame for violence. "Sen. Bob Corker 'begged' me to endorse him for re-election in Tennessee. I said 'NO' and he dropped out [said he could not win without my endorsement]," Trump wrote.

DRUG CHAINS TUMBLE ON AMAZON REPORTS

5 Shares of drug retailers Walgreens Boots Alliance Inc., CVS Health Corp. and Rite Aid Corp. tumbled after reports that Amazon.com Inc. was looking to make a move into selling drugs online. Amazon is reported to be in discussions with mid-market pharmacy benefit managers and has been hiring talent to assess the drug retailing market for its entry, brokerage firm Leerink analyst Ana Gupta wrote in a note to clients. "We are convinced that AMZN will almost certainly enter the drug distribution value chain within two years, evolving into a more disruptive offering over time," Gupta said. Amazon's entry into pharmaceuticals has been long rumored in the media. CNBC reported that the e-commerce giant would decide before Thanksgiving whether to move into selling prescription drugs online.

POLL

A poll from The Associated Press-NORC Center for Public Affairs Research finds that nearly 70 percent say Trump isn't level-headed, and majorities say he's neither honest nor a strong leader.

The future of Purr Cat Cafe in Brighton isn't yet clear to owner Diane Kelly. FACEBOOK

Future of Boston's first cat cafe uncertain

Purr Cat Cafe's Facebook page has been the scene of recent drama, and now owner Diane Kelly isn't sure what's next.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
@kristindakota
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

All eyes have been on Boston's first cat cafe lately, but unfortunately not because of any cute kittens.

Purr Cat Cafe, which sparked intense interest when first announced, was supposed to open in September, but it doesn't yet have any cats or an opening date in sight.

The partnerships between the business and its employees, local animal organizations and others have frayed — unfolding publicly in a series of Facebook posts that, even though they've been deleted, live on in an Imgur album and within Reddit threads.

After disputes over the animals' welfare that divulged into attacking Boston's Forgotten Felines (BFF) for not being a "dependable" business partner, Purr owner Diane Kelly said things got out of hand, and now she's worried about the future of her business.

"I considered selling the business because I'm so disheartened, but I don't want to give up," Kelly told Metro. At the time, Purr's Facebook page was taken down, possibly because of the negative comments and rating it received, Kelly said. It is now back up.

Kelly said things started to unwind when BFF, previously a Purr partner to provide cats that would be available for adoption, brought three cats to the location in August.

The cats were to live in Purr's basement, but animal experts said that it wasn't ready to house felines; Purr's former general manager, Kat Grace, shared an image of a nearly empty basement online. Kelly said she had enough things, like toys, crates and food. Grace said she herself spent $300 of her own money on cat trees, pillows and more to try to get Purr ready.

Ultimately, BFF took the cats back, both Grace and Kelly confirmed. When contacted, BFF said that it is not involved with the Purr Cat Cafe and has no other comment.

The end of that partnership led to the end of another with a company that was going to supply cat furniture. After "everything started to go south" on Purr's Facebook, they said they would no longer work with her, Kelly said.

"I take full responsibility, I didn't handle [Facebook] comments very well," Kelly said. "I took them personally and said some things that were not very nice ... which is not a good thing to do when you own a business."

Grace, who resigned, said that "it's tough to say" what happened with Purr because "the situation has been kind of grim for a long time and only recently has it gone public."

To her — a feline training and behavioral specialist — it's less about the "unprofessional" PR from Kelly and more about the care of the animals.

"I think Boston is a generally tough area to get [a cat cafe] to work in the first place. I do think it's a viable idea, but I don't think it was executed properly," she said. "To go into an animal-centric business with minimal animal welfare background is, I think, a mistake."

Kelly admitted that she's not an animal welfare expert — she worked in the medical field for 28 years — but said that she spent a lot of time and effort researching, visiting cat cafes in other states and speaking with their owners, and making connections in that world.

"I do love animals," Kelly said. "I've spent my entire life savings and sold three houses to do this. I spent two years to do it. Why would I open a cat cafe if I didn't love animals and want to help them?"

Of the worst celebrity neighbor feuds

In the eternal words of the Notorious B.I.G. "Mo' money, mo' problems." At least for these celebs, who have had some intense disagreements with the folks next door. Here are eight of the worst celebrity feuds. Who's the worst? That, friends, is up to you. METRO

ALL PHOTOS
GETTY IMAGES

Justin Bieber VS Kristen Bell & Dax Shepard

In 2012, Biebs moved next door to "The Good Place" star Kristen Bell and her husband, actor Dax Shepard. Shepard compared living next to Bieber — with the "music and the parties and the paparazzi" — to living in Lebanon. Uh-huh.

Billy Corgan VS Eric Dane

"The Last Ship" actor Dane said in 2012 that the Smashing Pumpkins frontman ignored warnings about the instability of some trees on his land — and then one of said trees crashed through Dane's roof, nearly killing his wife actress Rebecca Gayheart. Yikes.

Chris Brown VS Nick Young

Remember when Brown maybe threatened a woman in his home with a gun and then his home was surrounded by a SWAT team and police helicopters? The Golden State Warrior made a video begging Brown to GTFO (get the f—k out, y'all!) "Chris Brown, you gotta move," he says, choppers flying overhead. "Please, I like you, man. You my dawg... but go out away from over here... go!"

Justin Theroux VS Norman Resnicow

Actor Theroux filed documents in Manhattan Supreme Court this year claiming that his neighbor, Norman Resnicow, is "compulsively" harassing "The Leftovers" star in his Greenwich Village apartment. The feud has been going on with ages, with Theroux charging that Resnicow ruined his ivy, and Resnicow claiming that Theroux had neglected his dogs. Shocking.

Kathy Griffin VS Jeffrey Mezger

Griffin recently turned to court to get protection from her harassing neighbor, Jeffrey Mezger, who she filed a restraining order against over in September. She alleges that Mezger went on an expletive laced rant against herself and her boyfriend, Randy Bick, after Bick called police to make a noise complaint.

Miley Cyrus VS Steve Carell

Cyrus once recounted living next to "The Office" star Carell by insisting he always gave her the stank eye for her irresponsible driving habits. "The other day I was trying to reverse and I almost hit a thousand things," she said in 2013. "And I was getting nervous because I could see him [crossing his arms and sighing]. I'm like, oh my God, 'Dan in Real Life' is watching me right now!" Dear, oh dear.

Minnie Driver VS Eddie Kaye Thomas

Not only has Driver been involved in a year-long feud with neighbor Daniel Perelmutter; but the "Speechless" actress also once live tweeted another neighbor's drama. When "American Pie" star Eddie Kaye Thomas called the authorities after a female houseguest allegedly pulled a knife on him, Driver described the entire stand off via her Twitter page. Social media melodrama.

Marisa Tomei's parents VS Sean Lennon

The year? 2015. The problem? A tree. Tomei's parents sued Lennon for $10 million, claiming that the spawn of John and Yoko let a rotting ailanthus invade their beautiful townhome — cracking their stoop, breaking their iron railings, and compromising their basement wall. Rude.

Larry David doesn't give a sh*t if you watch 'Curb Your Enthusiasm'

"The wants, desires and needs of the audience have never come up."

GREGORY WAKEMAN
@MetroBOS
gregory.wakeman@metro.us

It shouldn't come as a surprise to fans, but according to long-time "Curb" collaborator, executive producer and director Jeff Schaffer, "I speak for Larry on this, the wants, desires and needs of the audience have never come up. We couldn't care less. If you told me that Larry was making this for his own shelf, he wouldn't make it any differently."

"It's like working in a comedy biosphere. You don't have to worry about anything in the outside world. You just have to worry about making a funny show."

But, after a six-year absence, how and why did Larry David finally decide to return to "Curb?" Turns out he just needed a little encouragement.

"There was a movie that Larry was thinking of doing and he wanted me to direct it, so we were talking about that," Schaffer recalled.

"But as we were talking about it Larry kept saying, 'That would be funny for 'Curb.' I'll save that for 'Curb.' So, finally I said, 'If you want to do 'Curb,' let's just do 'Curb!' Forget about the movie.'"

David and Schaffer then had to work out how to explain the lengthy gap between seasons. This was when they dreamed up the idea that Larry had been writing a musical about Salman Rushdie getting a Fatwa, which would then lead to Larry getting his very own Fatwa, all of which made them "really, really laugh."

"Larry getting a Fatwa seemed right. And it just gave us this season trajectory that was very interesting. And I will say now, even knowing how the season starts, you will never expect how it ends. We're editing the final two now, and I'm just pleased that even though it starts in an insane place, it ends beyond it."

Much has changed since "Curb" began (with a debut in 2000 and seasons in '01, '02, '04, '05, '07, '09, '11 ... and then now) but although Trump and the current social climate dominate cultural conversations, Schaffer admitted, "There are a few jokes here and there based on what's going on," but that doesn't dominate the narrative.

"Curb" is still "Curb" (thank goodness), and its main intention is just to make everybody howl with laughter.

"I think the great thing about Larry is that he sees the petty tree and loses sight of the forest. And in a world where everyone needs to be dealing with these bigger problems, someone has to take care of the petty stuff. Someone has to take care of the minutiae," Schaffer declared.

In collaboration with the popular online education service edX, Juilliard will now offer six different classes that are open to the public without having to be accepted through their notoriously competitive audition process. ISTOCK

Juilliard will now offer free online courses

Because auditions are overrated.

PAT KING
@MetroBOS
patrick.king@metro.us

Who would have thought that one of the most prestigious performing arts schools in the country would now be offering part of its curriculum for free online? That is exactly what the Juilliard School is offering with their new JuilliardX program. In collaboration with the popular online education service edX, Juilliard will now offer six different classes that are open to the public without having to be accepted through their notoriously competitive audition process. What would Miles Davis think if he were alive today?

According to a press release from Juilliard President Joseph W.

Polisi, this partnership was a logical no-brainer. "We at Juilliard believe that the development of artists at all levels and ages is an essential part of our responsibility within a global society," he said.

"We are proud to collaborate with edX to present these online courses that share the discipline, intricacy, and subtlety of music-making straight from our world-class faculty. These courses are designed with an immersive experience in mind and will also allow the learner to expand their artistic horizons using Juilliard's excellent educational expertise."

Not surprisingly, these classes don't seem like they will be "easy A's." The six online courses for JuilliardX are Discovering the Instruments of the Orchestra, Perform at Your Best: Foundations of Performance Psychology, Piano Preludes, How to Listen to Great Music for Orchestra, Music Theory 101, and Sharpen Your Piano Artistry. We spoke with Juilliard's managing director of operations, Courtney Blackwell Burton, to see why a school of such prestige would be willing to give away the goods for free while maintaining the highest quality possible.

"We were looking for a way to expand the reach and the impact of our school... without changing our on-campus curriculum," Burton explains.

She describes these courses as "beginner and intermediate level courses that people around the world can take," but stresses that this curriculum will still stick to Juilliard's high standards.

"There are really robust visual ways of communicating music theory concepts," she explains and is excited for the opportunity to "experiment with how technology can enhance performing arts education and how we can stretch technology to its limits in that way."

Burton hopes that these courses will act as a jumping off point for most students and that they will want to continue after they've completed these intermediate courses. For instance, the course How to Listen to Great Music for Orchestra is an interactive partnership with the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra that Burton describes as "a basic course for free which gives you some firm entry points into great orchestral masterworks." But if you choose to pay for the more advanced version of this course, you will certainly get your money's worth.

"If you want the full experience, where you're actually seeing the Berlin Philharmonic perform some of these pieces with interviews with the musicians," she says. "Then you can upgrade to get a verified certificate."

She believes that by offering these courses online, it will only strengthen Juilliard's reputation by increasing their reach.

"For us right now," says Burton, "We feel it is more important than ever to reach as many people as we can and technology is now at a point that is enabling that."

ster four-hit, three-RBI day coupled with David

Price's gutsy relief performance lifted the Red Sox to a 10-3 victory that included 15 hits from the home team in Game 3 of the ALDS over the Houston Astros, keeping their season alive for at least another day.

The Astros lead the best-of-five series, 2-1.

Based off the first two games, an Astros sweep was almost expected. The potent lineup batted .343 through the first two games of the ALDS, hammering out 16 runs in the process. By contrast, Boston batted just .244.

There was a chance to change that number though as they were meeting a relatively unknown Brad Peacock, who went 13-2 with a 3.00 ERA in Houston's rotation that featured Dallas Keuchel and later on, Justin Verlander.

He always had issues with the Red Sox though, sporting a 9.00 ERA in four career starts. His counterpart, Boston's Doug Fister, was one of the most underrated postseason pitchers out there with a 4-1 record and 1.78 ERA in eight career starts.

But six pitches into his outing, Fister was behind. After a George Springer lead-off single and a passed ball, Josh Reddick's single to center put Houston into an early lead.

Two batters later, Correa took Fister deep and out to center field for a two-run home run, ensuring that Houston put up crooked numbers in the first inning in all three games.

After allowing two base runners in the second, Fister's day was done, making way for Joe Kelley.

It fit the mold for Boston's starters though, who have recorded a combined 8.1 innings and allowed 18 hits, 14 runs and six round-trippers so far this series.

Houston almost put the game to bed in the second off Kelley when Reddick drove a deep drive to right field with two outs, but Mookie Betts reached over the short wall to rob the Astro of his second, third and fourth RBI of the day.

With momentum seized after the Betts catch, Boston loaded the bases with no outs in the inning. A Sandy Leon single drove in one, but that was all they could grab in the second.

But they came storming back in the third, piecing together a two-out rally to take the lead.

A Ramirez double drew them to within one, driving Peacock out of the game. In came Francisco Liriano, who was greeted rudely by Rafael Devers as he launched a two-run home run to put Boston in the lead and breathe new life into Fenway Park.

After Kelley slowed Houston's bats down, David Price came in and silenced them for four stellar innings, ensuring Boston kept its slim lead through the seventh inning.

It allowed the Red Sox to break it open in the bottom of the seventh as they put up a six-spot and batted around the order.

Ramirez continued his big evening, ripping a bases-loaded, two-RBI double to open the Red Sox's lead to 6-3. It became seven after Devers reached out and flared a single into no man's land between shortstop and right field.

Jackie Bradley Jr. capped off the inning when his deep fly ball to the right-field corner deflected off the glove of Reddick and into the seats for a three-run home run.

There's little time to enjoy this victory though as the Sox remain on the brink of elimination. Game 4 will be played on Monday afternoon with the first pitch coming at 1:08 p.m.

Colts 26, 49ers 23 (OT)

Two touchdowns in the game's final eight minutes from the 49ers forced things into overtime. The second coming with just 24 seconds. But the Colts would come out victorious after Adam Vinatieri's game-winning 51-yard field goal with 3:39 remaining in the extra frame.

Jets 17, Browns 14

The Jets have a winning record, a shocking fact considering this team wasn't supposed to win more than one or two games entering the season.

Josh McCown passed for two touchdowns while Browns rookie DeShone Kizer was benched at halftime.

Jaguars 30, Steelers 9

In one of the most surprising results of the week, Ben Roethlisberger threw five interceptions against a solid Jaguars secondary with two of them being returned for touchdowns. Rookie running Leonard Fournette rushed for 181 yards on the day, including a 90-yard touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Chargers 27, Giants 22

Eli Manning's fumble with less than five minutes remaining set up Los Angeles' game-winning touchdown, a 10-yard connection from Philip Rivers to Melvin Gordon. The Giants are 0-5 for the second time since the 2013 season.

Bengals 20, Bills 16

Cincinnati is now winners of two straight after slowing down the Bills, who entered Week 5 in first place in the AFC East. An A.J. Green 77-yard touchdown reception highlighted the Bengals' big day as they held Buffalo to just 221 total yards.

Panthers 27, Lions 24

The Panthers had to stave off a late comeback attempt from the Lions, who scored 14 fourth-quarter points to almost overturn a 27-10 deficit. After drawing within three with three minutes left, the Panthers were able to run the clock out after a big 17-yard completion from Cam Newton to Kelvin Benjamin on a 3rd-and-9 with 2:30 left.

Dolphins 16, Titans 10

Jay Cutler hit Jarvis Landry for a six-yard touchdown pass with 4:56 left in the fourth quarter to break a 10-10 tie and lift the Dolphins to their second win of the season. Cutler threw for just 92 yards on the afternoon.

Eagles 34, Cardinals 7

Carson Wentz spun together a gem of a day, completing 21-of-30 passes for 304 yards and four touchdowns. Three of them came in the first quarter as the Eagles put this game away early. The defense was just as solid, conceding just a second-quarter touchdown.

Ravens 30, Raiders 17

The absence of Derek Carr proved to be a problem for the Raiders as EJ Manuel could only muster 159 yards through the air. Jimmy Smith had the big play of the day for Baltimore's defense, returning a fumble 47 yards for a touchdown.

Seahawks 16, Rams 10

It wasn't too convincing, but the Seahawks' defense clinched a narrow victory over the Rams by shutting out their opponents for the entire second half.

Packers 35, Cowboys 31

Aaron Rodgers hooked up with Davante Adams with 11 seconds left to cap off a game-winning, 75-yard drive that began with just 1:13 on the clock in the fourth.

New role players to watch on the C's

While the acquisitions of Hayward and Thomas were huge, Boston rounded out its roster with some solid role players.

JIMMY TOSCANO
@MetroBOS
sports@metro.us

To say that the Boston Celtics had an interesting offseason would be a bit of an understatement.

They signed one of the most sought-after free agents on the market in Gordon Hayward and then acquired superstar Kyrie Irving in a blockbuster trade that sent Isaiah Thomas to Cleveland.

And while you definitely need superstars to make any noise in the NBA, you've got to surround them with the right guys to make it all work. And believe it or not, the Celtics did add some other new players to the mix over the offseason.

So who else can Celtics fans expect to see a good amount of this season, and hopefully grow to enjoy watching? Let's take a look at three new names that you may not be too familiar with yet, but will be soon enough.

1. ARON BAYNES

Can you say early front-runner for fan favorite?

Gigantic Australian: check. Wacky hair: check. Down to do the dirty work: check. Did we mention gigantic Australian?

The Baynes signing went way under the radar, but the truth is that the Celtics got an imposing force down low that could provide the big-man presence that they so lacked at points last season.

Baynes is an NBA champion with the Spurs, so he also knows what it takes to win.

With career averages of 5.2 points, 4.1 rebounds, and 14.1 minutes per game playing behind Tim Duncan and Andre Drummond, it's not crazy to think Baynes may be in for a career-year with the Celtics with an increased role.

And it's certainly not

Aron Baynes' gritty style of play could be a welcome addition to the Celtics during the upcoming season. GETTY IMAGES crazy to think the Aussie isn't afraid to mix things up with the opposition.

2. DANIEL THEIS

From Australia over to Germany, the Celtics signed another European over the offseason in the 6-foot-8 power forward Theis (pronounced Tice).

Unlike Baynes, though, the 25-year-old Theis comes to the Celtics as a rookie, with Boston hoping their scouts overseas found a diamond in the rough.

If the first preseason game was any indication (and let's be honest, preseason means everything), Theis could have an impact on the C's earlier than expected. In 14 points during his first preseason game, Theis dropped 12 points and grabbed seven rebounds, showing an ability to get to the rim.

Don't forget, he's not your typical rookie coming out of college — he played in Germany since 2009 before drawing NBA interest — so he could have an impact sooner than most rookies.

3. MARCUS MORRIS

Morris is a proven veteran in the NBA but has yet to really get started with the Celtics.

He was traded to over the offseason for Avery Bradley and was recently just acquitted, along with his twin brother Markieff, of aggravated assault stemming from an incident back in 2015.

Now that it's over, Morris has joined the team and looks to be a major part of the starting lineup as well as the second unit, based on matchups, this season.

Morris, a versatile forward, has missed just six games over the last four seasons. He averaged 14.1 points and 4.8 rebounds in two seasons with the Pistons and also provides a bit of an attitude out there on the court that young players like Jaylen Brown and Jayson Tatum could learn from.

Aries Count your pennies. Overspending would have severe consequences. Moderation and discipline will be your keys to greater prosperity.

Taurus Do what you can to get your responsibilities out of the way before you move on to personal plans. Schedule something that will help lessen your stress.

Gemini Inform demanding individuals that you have other responsibilities. Traveling or educational pursuits are in your best interest. Positive incentives will motivate you.

Cancer When dealing with matters that have the potential to affect your home or comfort, take precautions. Maintain balance by gaining the support needed to overcome adversity.

Leo Do whatever needs to be done on your own time, regardless of what others are doing. Your intellectual approach will bring you the success you are searching for.

Virgo Put an emotional situation to rest before it affects your productivity and an important relationship. Keep grievances to yourself and work alone.

Libra Getting along with others will be half the battle. Listen, offer suggestions and, most of all, stick to the truth. Much can be accomplished if you follow protocol.

Scorpio Make physical changes that will build your strength and help you feel ready to conquer whatever comes your way. Handle emotional regrets that hold you back.

Sagittarius Do whatever it takes to stabilize your life and relationships with the people who count. Nurturing and protecting your interests will counter emotional loss.

Capricorn You'll be tempted to rethink your beliefs if you fall prey to an unrealistic picture of a "perfect" lifestyle. Trust in what you know, not in what someone tells you.

Aquarius Fix up your place and tackle unfinished personal business that is holding you back. Discuss your plans and combat any negative input with a positive solution.

Pisces Know what you are talking about before you offer advice. You'll be blamed if you meddle in someone else's affairs. Don't go where you aren't welcome. EUGENIA LAST
